WIRED RELATIVES HAD LOST ALL HOPE

MARVELOUS NARRATIVE

Charleston Engineer Tells How Swift Disolution of His Wife Was Averted By Tanlac

The story of relief received by Mrs. J. H. Johnson who lives at No. 7 Charlotte Street, Charleston, and who is the wife of the popular engineer on the Seaboard Air Line Railway, is nothing short of wonderful. Sick from childhood and afflicted with a combination of ailments which must have provoked many distressing hours, she finally tried Tanlac as a last resort. The result of the experiment is the best told in the words of her husband.

"My wife had stomach trouble since she was a small girl," states Mr. Johnson. "When she was about fifteen years old her father took her to a physician, and this physician did all he could to arrest her trouble, which failed. Since that time she has had some of the most eminent physicians in the South attending her without result."

"In recent years the very best medical talent that I could procure for her in the States of North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee and here in Charleston has failed to benefit her. In Chattanooga, Tenn., I had several of the most prominent doctors there attending her, but they failed to relieve her sufferings. Then I brought her to Charleston and called in some of Charleston's most able physicians. They finally said that an operation was necessary, but she was going to die, I asked her what she thought of Tanlac. She said she had read testimonials in the paper and believed it would help her. I went to the Paragon Drug Store on King street, and after talking to the Tanlac man, I purchased a bottle."

"Previous to taking Tanlac, Mrs. Johnson had not eaten one bit of food and retained it on her stomach in sixteen weeks—four months. I Tanlac on a Wednesday, I think it was, and I give you my word; when I bought it I did not think my wife would be alive on Saturday. I had given up all hope."

"She vomited up the first two doses of Tanlac, but after that she retained it, and after she had taken one-half of the bottle she ate some light food. She has now taken four bottles and is nearly well. She was up town tonight and two weeks ago went over to the Isle of Palms. Tanlac saved my wife's life, and anyone who wants to verify this statement may do so. My address is No. 7 Charlotte street, Charleston, S. C., and I will only be too glad to answer any and all inquiries. It is the most wonderful medicine in the world, and I thank God I was privileged to buy it."

"Tanlac, the master medicine, is sold exclusively by Evans' Pharmacy, two stores, Anderson; Horton's Pharmacy, Belton; West Peller Drug Co., Pendleton Drug Co., Pendleton; Bolt Drug Co., Honea Path; D. L. Donald, Williamston; Suber Drug Co., Piedmont. Price $1 per bottle straight."
